MEDIA RELEASE:

For Immediate Release

Friday January 5, 2018

It's a Boy!

The first baby born at Norfolk General Hospital in 2018 is Glenn Edward Scollon. Glenn was delivered on January 4, 2018 at 10:24am weighing 7 pounds 13 ounces. He is the first child for parents Michael and Jessica Scollon.

As a new parent Jessica's thoughts were not on the fact that Glenn would be the first of New Year but rather as she put it "I just wanted him out. Now he is here and I'm really happy". Dad Michael's smile reflects the same happiness and pride "It's very exciting" he said. Jessica notes that Glenn seems to be a very content little baby and they cannot wait to get him home.

Being Norfolk residents, Norfolk General Hospital was the couple's choice to deliver their baby. "It's close to where I live and Dr (Brian) Ferguson was actually the doctor that delivered my sister's baby so that's why I had him." For Jessica, her sister's experience with Dr. Ferguson, the first OB/GYN at NGH provided a level of comfort "I had met him before so that made it a bit easier."

As is tradition, the first baby of the New Year received a gift from the Hospital's Board of Directors. Glenn and his parents take home a silver musical snow globe to commemorate the birth.
